World Fair Commissioner Goes to Fight a Louisiana Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, June 20.—A few days ago Col. John W. Foster, Louisiana commissioner to the World's Fair, left Chicago for New Orleans, and it was supposed that he came home for the purpose of getting Gov. Foster to settle the disputes among the Louisiana Commissioners. It developed yesterday that his object was to fight a duel with a country doctor.

The doctor, Glaise, of the Bunkie Laid, a paper published in Lavoyelles parish, wrote something to which the commissioner took exception, and a referee got treated resulted in a challenge and the completion of arrangements for a duel to be fought with shotguns loaded with buckshot, at fifteen paces.

Sunday evening Col. Wickliffe arrived, and immediately left for Bunkie, accompanied by E. O'Sullivan, City Attorney, who acted as his friend. Yesterday took exception, and a referee got together and an amicable settlement was the result.

The First Cable Car Death to Be Thoroughly Investigated.

Coroner Schultz announces that he will thoroughly investigate the first fatal accident by the Broadway cable which resulted last evening in the death of seven-year-old Johnnie Wallace, who lived with his widowed mother at 721 Seventh avenue.

Johnnie was playing tag with other boys at Forty-eighth street and Seventh avenue, when cable car No. 9, in charge of Conductor Oliver, ran over him and down, face forward, and passed rapidly over his body, dragging him over the road.

The features were badly bruised and scarcely recognizable.

Gripman Jones, who is twenty-two years old, and has been employed by the employee, claims he did not see the boy until the car had almost touched him. He was arrested and released on $1,500 bail.

It was supposed the guard of the car, which is six inches from the track, could not pass over a body.

THE NESSABA RANGE FIRES.

Virginia and Merritt, Minn., Wiped Out—No Loss of Life.

DULUTH, Minn., June 20.—Accurate news of the fires in the Nessaba range shows the usual exaggeration in the first reports, but the money loss will be about $100,000.

The first stories regarding Mountain Iron and Biwabik were untrue. At Biwabik only a few detached buildings were burned, and at Mountain Iron only six buildings.

At Virginia the situation is as serious as it can be. The entire business portion of the town is destroyed. About thirty houses are standing and 340 were burned.

Merritt is nearly wiped out, only sixteen buildings now remaining in the town.

The situation of the sufferers at Virginia is particularly unfortunate. Most of them have no shelter, clothing, food, and food, despite the supplies that have been sent from Duluth, is scarce.

The money loss from the fires will reach $1,500,000. There is no authenticated report of a loss of life.

The party went down to meet Gilbert on the tug Robert Hays, and landed at Castle Garden.

Gilbert looked very pale. He refused to give any publication until he had consulted with his friends.

He was taken to the home of a friend in New Jersey.

YOUNG MANZANELLO PUT AWAY.

His Father Said to Have Taught Him to Be a Thief.

Justice Goetting, in the Lee Avenue court, Williamsburg, to-day sent Michael Manzanello, seven years old, to St. Dominic's home.

Despite the boy's tender years he has been arrested on several occasions, and the police say that he is as well trained in little thief as he is in Brooklyn.

A few weeks ago Michael was arrested on a charge of stealing from the till of a grocery at 24 Richardson street, and it was then alleged that the owner had been taught how to be a thief by his father.

Owing to the boy's youth he was not committed to the house of correction, and he disappeared.

For his last week young Manzanello has been roaming the streets, and in court to-day he was convicted of vagrancy.

IN THE BORDEN CASE.

It Is Argued that Lizzie Had to Kill Her Father.

because He Would Know Who Had Slain His Wife.

District-Attorney Knowlton's Picture of the Transformed Daughter.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 30.—There was less of a jam outside the court-house this morning, although at the opening of the Borden case there were as many people in the room as at any time during the session.

Among the peculiarities of the morning was the receipt of a box by ex-Gov. Robinson, sent from Pennsylvania, in which was a small handless hatchet.

Miss Borden entered the court at 10.35 and ex-Gov. Robinson took a seat beside her and the two engaged in conversation until court opened, when District-Attorney Knowlton picked up the thread of his argument where he dropped it last night.

MR. KNOWLTON ON THE MOTIVE.

The counsel who opened the cause for the defense said motive was a part of the government's case, but the speaker said this was not so, although the contest was all before the fact, the concluding the facts in the case.

"It does afford," said he, "satisfaction in our reasoning to have discovered that there were unfortunate conditions in that family from which we can suspect even he malice existing. I have called your attention to the way in which they lived under the same roof. It impresses me deeply, as I am sure it did you. The malice was all before the fact, the wickedness the ingratitude had gone on under that roof for many, many months.

"Because the lips of those who do now are sealed in death, we don't know but that some new phase had come up in the family life adding to the feeling of malice and jealousy existing in this woman. No suggestion could be made by that poor man as in the waves of his mind, but would fan the flames into unquenchable fire.

LIZZIE BORDEN TRANSFORMED.

"There may be that in this case which shows that Lizzie Andrew Borden did plan to kill her father, and I hope so. But it was not Lizzie Andrew Borden who came down those stairs to murder her father, but a murderer, transformed from the ties of affection to the most consummate cruelty ever known.

"She came down to meet that stern old man, who loved his daughter, but who also loved his wife, and when he one man above all who would know who had killed his wife, and when she came downstairs she came to meet him. She knew too much of the family relations, and she didn't dare let him live.

"When she came downstairs it was her father she met, but it was also the husband of the stepmother whom she hated. There was no escape from the crime but to complete the bloody work. This second murder was not planned, it was done as a wicked and fearful necessity. And I say this to relieve my conscience of the dreadful feeling that there is a deliberate parricide in the world.

SECOND ACT OF THE TRAGEDY.

"Bridget was doing her work at the house, and the old man was taking the daily walk of his life. We found him moving slowly about the city, stopping in various places of business, and finally he turned into the yard of the house where his wife lay dead. He went down to the side door and found it locked, went to the front door and tried to use his key, but couldn't, and was let in by Bridget.

"He came into the house, sat down, and then came Lizzie from the very place where his wife lay dead, and told him a falsehood about where that wife was. Where was that step-mother? She said that. That would keep the old man silent for a time, but not for long. Then Bridget came into the dining-room to wash the windows there, and the old man, after paying a visit to his room, came into the sitting-room again, and Lizzie, with the spirit of Judas kissing his master, suggests that he lay down to get a rest.

"She tells Bridget that if she goes downtown to lock up the door, as she might go out herself. Then Bridget goes upstairs to get her rent and Lizzie goes on ironing, alone with her victim. In less than twenty minutes she calls her servant down and tells her that her father is killed. She had a good fire to burn her clothes with, and I have the evidence to prove it, for Officer Harrington tells us that at 12.30 there were living embers in the stove."

Mr. Knowlton emphasized the fact that Lizzie left her ironing unfinished when the crime was committed. Reading her varying explanations of her conduct at the time of the crime, he argued that they were incredible. Rubinski's story of the woman coming from the second story, and the fact that the defendant's alibi. The prisoner watched Mr. Knowlton fixly during his argument.

LOUIS HELD FOR REQUISITION.

The Twelve-Year-Old Boy Will Be Taken to New Jersey.

He Declares Bertie Wagner Was Shot Accidentally.

Louis Wood, the little fellow, twelve years old, charged with the murder of Bertie Wagner, the three-year-old son of Louis Wagner, a farmer, living near Freehold, N. J., was held to await requisition papers by Justice Walsh in the Adams Street Police Court, Brooklyn, this morning.

Although the boy is in his thirteenth year he is very small and appears about ten years of age.

While Clerk Walsh was making out the proper papers in the case, Louis sat on one of the court benches between Detective Ryan, of the Brooklyn Central squad, and Constable Charles E. Strong, of Monmouth County, N. J., who arrested him at his home, 137 North fourth street, Williamsburg, yesterday afternoon. The boy had spent the night in the Adams Street Police Station.

Louis cried a good deal and said he heartbroken mother, clad in a neat black dress. She sobbed continually.

Louis cried a good deal and said he did not want to be taken away from his mother.

Constable Strong told Justice Walsh the story of the shooting, based on circumstantial evidence.

He said that Louis had been sent from Brooklyn to work on Mr. Wagner's farm about a week ago, but that he forced away his time and refused to execute the orders of his employers.

Saturday afternoon Farmer Wagner discharged the boy Louis, he said.

The old man was fond of his boys. There were two shoguns in the room.

There was an old double-barrelled affair that had not been loaded in years. The other was a single-barrel gun.

Mrs. Wagner was at work in the kitchen when she heard the report.

She rushed upstairs and met Wood coming down pale and trembling.

Little Bertie was found on the floor, his head in the wall.

He lived about five minutes.

The old man was lying by his side with one barrel empty.

Young Wood came back and said Bertie shot himself while playing with the gun. Then he packed his worldly goods in a cigar-box and came to town.

To an "Evening World" reporter Louis said, between his sobs:

"I don't want to be a farmer. I don't like it. Bertie shot himself. I won't want to go away from mamma. They will hang me."

The boy will be cared for by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children until requisition papers arrive, when he will be taken to Freehold to answer the charge of murder.

TRANSIT AT LA SHOCKED BY A LIVE WIRE.

Lineman McMullery Fatally Injured in Jersey City.

Tendered Unconscious and Lay in a Network of Wires.

Edward McMullery, a lineman of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who resided in East Newark, met with a shocking accident in Jersey City to-day.

McMullery, with a number of other men, was sent to repair a wire which was strung along Newark avenue. He ascended a pole between Grove and Erie streets at about 10:30 A. M., and when he reached the top he reached for a telegraph wire which had become entangled with other wires.

As he did so his body was seen to tremble violently and he fell over in the network of wires. He still retained hold with one arm about the telegraph pole. His companions shouted to him the same poles of this avenue, and it was several times, but, receiving no response, they realized what had happened.

Electric light wires are strung along the same poles of this avenue, and it was apparent that McMullery had received a violent shock while trying to disentangle the telegraph wire.

Much excitement prevailed in the neighborhood, and a crowd collected in the street and gazed up at the prostrate man in the network of wires. It was generally supposed that McMullery was dead.

Foreman Samuel Meyers, of the gang of linemen, ascended the pole and cautiously made an examination. McMullery was not dead, but unconscious.

After much difficulty Meyers fastened a rope around McMullery's waist and, throwing the rope over the arm of the pole, the unconscious man was lowered to the ground slowly. While Meyers supported his body, an ambulance was called, and McMullery was taken to the City Hospital.

There it was found that he had been fatally burned by the electric current on the breast near the heart, on his forehead over the left eye and on his hands and legs.

"There is little chance for the man's recovery."

APPRISER HAS THE REPORT.

the Case of Appraiser Cooper Will Now Be Acted Upon.

Shoe Manufacturer Northrop Summoned to To-Day's Secret Session.

The report of the Custom-House Commission of inquiry touching the case of appraiser Cooper, has been forwarded to Washington after receiving the approval of ex-Secretary Fairchild. This report was called for by the Secretary of the Treasury in order to enable him to take action in regard to the Appraiser's resignation and his practical abandonment of his office.

No recommendation whatever with regard to the disposition of Mr. Cooper's case was made by the Commission, according to Mr. Dunn, but the facts in reference to the giving out of the official correspondence in the Wiswell-Simon case for publication, as well as that in the examination of the witnesses, were fully detailed so that Secretary Fairchild will be able to exercise intelligent judgment in acting upon Mr. Cooper's case.

Only three of the Commissioners, Messrs. Maxtone, Dunn and Macfarlane, were present this morning when business was resumed at the old stand in the Barge Office.

Mr. Fairchild, it was said, was still so busy to attend this morning, though he was expected to come down in the afternoon.

Mr. Macfarlane announced that there would be no public examination of witnesses during the morning session, but that a number of merchants and importers who had volunteered to give information regarding Custom-House frauds would be examined privately. He doubted very much if reporters could be admitted at the afternoon session.

Among the representatives of the mercantile firms who were in attendance were Messrs. J. R. Simon & Co., who are members of the Commission, and Mr. Simon, of J. R. Simon & Co., who are accused of having made gross undervaluations in their invoices of Japanese goods, which were passed through the Appraiser's Stores with the connivance of Examiner Wiswell.

It is understood that there is still a large amount of work to be done by the commission in the investigation of the Wiswell case, and the special charges against the Appraiser's Stores, before they will be ready to take up any other department of the customs service.

Among those who appeared at yesterday afternoon's session of the Commission were Deputy Collector Couch and Deputy Appraiser Cyrus A. Stevens. They did not appear as witnesses, but as assistants of the customs officers in regard to the further prosecution of the investigation.

Speakers at the forenoon session were Messrs. Agents McCoy and Whitehead were present this morning when the Commission began its work.

Secretary Northrop, of the Shoe Manufacturers' Association, was also in attendance, and was examined in regard to the importations of gloves, and reports of undervaluations in that class of goods by a prominent firm of importers some years ago.

During the forenoon Joseph C. Wiswell, the former examiner of silks, came down to the Barge Office, and was admitted to the Committee room.

HEAT'S NEW RECORD.

Farmer Dunn Says This Is the Hottest June Day in Years.

Humidity Refuses to Conspire with Its Old Side Partner.

Temperature Climbing Up Nearly Four Degrees an Hour.

"This has been the warmest morning New York has experienced this year," said Weather Prophet Dunn to an Evening World" reporter this morning, and the indications are that to-day will be the warmest June day on record.

According to Mr. Dunn's records, the best June day was in 1888, and then a thermometer registered 91 degrees. At this morning the warm wave, which seems to have settled over the entire country from Maine to Florida, and from New York to Kansas, had begun its work by sending the mercury in thermometers stealing up towards the nineties.

At 8 o'clock the temperature was 72 degrees, while three hours later it had climbed up to 88 degrees. No wonder Dunn declared that the prospects were for to-day would be a record-breaker for heat.

The warm wave which overspreads the entire country east of Kansas, is accompanied by very little range in the temperature at Philadelphia, where it hangs here between 74 and 84 degrees.

People are perspiring this morning just as freely in Philadelphia as in Jupiter and Key West, Fla., and there is just as much heat away up in Moorhead, Minn., as down in Vicksburg, Miss., while no local condition of affairs exists in New Orleans and Marquette, Mich.

In this place at 8 o'clock the thermometer registered 84 degrees, 76 degrees and 80 degrees, respectively, with bright prospects for increasing heat.

Notwithstanding the fact that this New York area is confronted by this condition of heat there is some consolation that the humidity is not so plentiful in the atmosphere, and this may cause some people to doubt that we have record-breaking weather for heat.

At 8 o'clock there was only 53 per cent. of humidity in the atmosphere, which is unusually low, but the fact remained that we are experiencing hot weather.

This warm wave, according to Mr. Dunn, is going to stay awhile, for a day or two, and it is going to continue heating influences in the vast region now convulsed, and although there are some light showers to the south of us, Mr. Dunn declares that we are to have generally fair weather.

There is, however, be some change tomorrow night, but the unpleasant assurance is made that to-morrow the weather will be just as warm as today.

It is alleged that Dr. Reinsale is now making a practice of resigning, as he has a diploma.

Health Officer Allen said to-day that he could not give a license to Reinsale to keep an establishment in good sanitary condition so as not to endanger the public health, and it is probable the County Medical Society would take some action against Reinsale with a view of having him investigated by the Grand Jury.
